The Paris 2024 Games Are Here!

Friday, July 26th; Paris, France – The Paris 2024 Olympic Games are finally upon us, as 67 NYAC members look to continue the NYAC's tradition of top-class performances on the world's biggest stage. At the time of writing, the Opening Ceremony on the River Seine was underway, with nearly half a million spectators lining the route of the magnificent spectacle. Over the coming weeks, the NYAC's Olympians will compete in 12 sports, ranking from fencing to boxing to modern pentathlon to water polo, until the Closing Ceremony on Sunday, August 11th.

RESULTS SO FAR

Although the Opening Ceremony took place on Friday, July 26th, the rugby sevens competition, featuring the NYAC's Perry Baker, Kevon Williams, Steve Tomasin, and Lucas Lacamp, began on Wednesday, July 24th. In their first match of the Games, the US Men tied host country France, 12-12. Steve Tomasin made a conversion, and Lucas Lacamp scored a try in his Olympic debut. Just four hours later, the US Men, referred to as the Eagles, were back on the field, this time to face Fiji, the 2016 and 2020 Olympic champions. The Fijians overpowered the USA by a score of 38-12. Perry Baker, the 38-year-old playing in his third and final Olympics, scored one try. On Thursday, July 25th, the USA played Uruguay with the knowledge that a win would ensure qualification to the quarter-finals. The NYAC's foursome was indispensable as the Eagles rose to the occasion with a 33-17 victory. Baker converted four tries, setting the Olympic record for most tries scored in a men's match. Lacamp added a try of his own, Tomasin made all four of his conversions and Kevon Williams ably captained the team. Advancing to the quarter-final as the seventh seed, the Eagles faced second-seeded Australia later that same day. Unfortunately, their medal hopes were dashed by Australia with an 18-0 defeat. Tomorrow, Saturday, July 27th, they will face Ireland at 9am to determine their final placing. For complete results, click here.
